

YRC Worldwide Companies Win Quest For Quality Awards

Regional transportation providers Holland and New Penn receive recognition from shippers in Logistics Management readership survey.

OVERLAND PARK, Kan., Aug 18, 2009 /PRNewswire via COMTEX News Network/ -- YRC Worldwide Inc. (Nasdaq: YRCW), announced today that two of its regional operating companies, Holland and New Penn, were honored with the Logistics Management magazine 2009 Quest for Quality award.

Holland received the award in the LTL Midwest/North Central category, and both New Penn and Holland were recipients in the Expedited Motor Carrier category.

The Quest for Quality awards give buyers of transportation and logistics services the opportunity to express their satisfaction by rating providers on service quality. This year, the magazine received 6,485 responses to its survey.

Shippers vote on the attributes of on-time performance, value, customer service, information technology and equipment/operations to identify the transportation providers that are delivering world-class service.

"Clearly the most important contributor to our success is delivering confidence to our customers," said Mike Smid, President-YRC Inc., and Chief Operations Officer-YRC Worldwide. "This is truly a reflection of the commitment our experienced service professionals have to exceed customer expectations. We are honored to be awarded this leadership distinction in our industry."

For Holland, this represents the 24th consecutive year it has been awarded a Logistics Management Quest for Quality award, including recognition for its expedited services the past two years. New Penn, which recently announced expansions to its expedited services portfolio, has received an award for 16 consecutive years.
